DRAMATIC DANCE: Children at The Sue Townsend Theatre

Yoga bears go on a hunt at city theatre

TOTS with their faces painted as bears and teenagers with arms decorated to represent grass, snow and mud, took to the stage to perform a children's story with yoga and drama.

Almost 40 children from the age of three and up re-enacted We're Going on a Bear Hunt, at the Sue Townsend Theatre, in Leicester.

The performance was organised by drama and yoga school Blossom Yoga.

The younger children used yoga postures as well as acting to tell the tale.

The older children performed yoga to music to represent grass, a river, mud, a forest, a snowstorm and a cave.

Jacinda Butterworth, owner of Blossom Yoga, said: "It went really well.

"It was the first time we used the theatre and it was a great experience for the children."
